CELEBRATING 100 YEARS OF WISCONSIN COMMUNITY SERVICES

Milwaukee, WI – Milwaukee County Supervisors Steve F. Taylor and Russell W. Stamper II were proud to attend last week’s “An Evening of Light” event honoring Wisconsin Community Services’ 100 years of operation.

“As a new County Supervisor, last week’s program was particularly inspiring to me,” Supervisor Taylor said. “I commend WCS for a century of service to the people of Milwaukee County.”

“I support WCS and am grateful for all the wonderful things they do in our community,” Supervisor Stamper said. “I am very proud to congratulate WCS on their centennial anniversary.”

Wisconsin Community Services (WCS) is a non-profit agency with more than 40 programs that serves many of Milwaukee’s most disenfranchised and highest risk residents. WCS advocates for justice and community safety, providing innovative opportunities for individuals to overcome adversity.
